"Never read any book not a year old."-Emerson

We may call attention to the degree in which the financial crisis is now crowding this rule upon the American public, whether they like it or no. The absolute dearth of at new books, original or printed, from American publishing houses, is such as has not been equalled for many years In those families which cannot take up Agassiz's truths for their light reading, we hear of fathers of families who are forced to read aloud Pierce's Celestial Dynamics for want of any recent novels, for the entertainment of the evening. And the recent distribution of the patent report has been hailed as a god-send, in circles where the utter stoppage of other available literature seemed likely to make useless, (but for the daily blessings of the newspaper) the time which had been devoted to the study of the art of reading.

The novel which we noticed on Wednesday, called Debit and Credit, has been translated into five languages, and was six months ago circulated in two translations through all at England. In ordinary times we should have February 20th, 1858. fifty thousand copies of it, last O tober, he'e. But last O. tober Messrs. Harper had other Debits and Credits to be caring for, and we had to wait four months for our novel .--Poor Mr. Capen, at the Public Library, has been besieged by the applicants for the single copy of the English edition there, -and we know not whether its binding and paper have survived the multifold use it has been applied to.

Buckle's History of Civilization, published a year since in England, is pronounced by high authority the greatest book in the language since the Novum Organum. Whether it is or not, we dare not say. The Athera-um copy has got aground,—and a train of divines and philosophers daily inquire for it in vain. The few other copies which found their way to Boston, have been bought up at fabulous prices, and are held by readers, who we suppose take turns in wasting the midnight gas over them. Meanwhile, there is a rumor that the Appletons are going to republish the book when better times shall come. Till then we wait for the new Lord

Lord Dofferio's Yacht Voyage, from which some weeks since we made some extracts, is one of the brightest books of travel which we have bad for years. In any but a crisis-winter it would have been on every table--by the side of the sadder pages of Dr. Kane. As it is .-- it exists as yet, only in the elegant English edition.

It is thus that the panic is forcing all readers who rely on reprinted editions to follow Mr. Emerson's rule, whether they like it or no .-- so far as the literature of the mother country goes. For we see none of it till it is more than a year old. Let us hope for better times.-Boston Daily Adv.

FASHION MARKET.

In reviewing the condition of this market during the last week, we have to report a degree of bouyancy, (and girlancy) which is observable in no other branch of business .--The various sorts of Dinners, Supper Parties and Receptions have been in eager demand, and holders have had no difficulty in disposing of them at their own rates. "Receptions" have been clearly the fancy stock, and have had an immense run. The principal dealers are talking of a combination to reduce the time on this article from 104 to 9, as they deelare it impossible to su-tain themselves at the present rates, which now frequently rule as high as 2 A. M. In connection with this branch of trade, large operations have been made in Coffee, Tea, Chocolate and Sandwiches, at remunerative prices. Supper stock may be said to have gone down considerably and a good deal of whining has been noticed in consequence. A large quantity of White Kids, taken up at la 11, remain in first hands, though we hear of several lots cleaned up, as low as 122 per pair. Allrounders continue firm, but are put up in such small parcels that holders are facetiously quoted as "necks to nothing." There is no abatement in Crinoline as yet, and so far as evening companies are concerned, we notice amongst Petticoats "nary a red." nile" stock continues to appreciate, and we have heard this week of a lot of Prime O.d. Ladies quoted at 20 a 22, and a lot of Extra Roue was offered as low as 19. Little or nothing is being done in Weddings, and we have not heard of a single operation in Engagements; the latter article is as flat as Pentisylvania Bank, probably owing to the same cause, a want of specie basis. In "Opera" a heavy business has been done, the Bulls having it all their own way, (judging by the horns in the Orchestra, and the b-llows in the Patent Ventilator and the matinee which was held at 3½ apres midi.) This stock has ting in greatly increased activity. There are some "fancies" which have had a wonderfully uniform success this winter-as a sample of which we may quote the "Lancers." More operations have been set on foot in this line than in any other, and the movement continues unabated. Some of the declers have done a tearing business, and have succeeded in putting a peculiar stamp on the stock. We regard it, however, as purely a "fancy," and expect to find it marked "no quotation" before another season. Any one who has watched the fluctuations in this marwarned in time and shorten sail, or they will in 2 will be entitled to $20, and so on to 0. find themselves, when the crash is up, going too fast .- Phila.
